MOUNT VERNON, NY — Not even pumpkin patches can escape coronavirus in 2020. The ongoing pandemic means many of the area's pumpkin patches have had to adjust hours, regulations and activities.

In a rare pandemic-era success story, the upscale grocer and Upper East Side institution opened a new neighborhood shop Wednesday.

UPPER EAST SIDE, NY — In a rare pandemic-era success story, Upper East Side institution Butterfield Market opened a second neighborhood shop Wednesday, filling the Madison Avenue space once occupied by Dean & DeLuca.

The upscale grocery and specialty food store has done business on Lexington Avenue since 1915, and also runs a robust catering operation. The new location at 1150 Madison Avenue was slated to open April 21, but the coronavirus scuttled those plans with just five weeks to go before opening day, owners and siblings Joelle and Evan Obsatz told Patch.

The delays made Wednesday's arrival even sweeter, Evan said.

Subscribe >

"So far it's been great," he said. "We're getting a really nice reception from the neighborhood."

During the four-month closure, the owners redesigned the space to account for the reality of the pandemic. Narrow aisles and tightly-stocked shelves were spaced out and decluttered, creating wide walkways with social distancing markers stuck to the white-tiled floor.

The air conditioning system was revamped to improve filtration, amenities like a salad bar and a dine-in cafe were put on hold, and a home delivery area was expanded to meet a rise in demand.

"We're assuming that will be a big part of the business," Evan Obsatz said of home delivery.

An express window on the East 85th Street corner, originally intended only for frozen yogurt, now serves a wider variety of food and drink options to accommodate those who would rather not enter the store.

The new location is staffed by about 60 new employees, about half of whom had been furloughed in the spring from Butterfield's catering business.

Beyond the expected selection of produce, baked goods and prepared food, the owners said they've upped their focus on traditional local delicacies, including a smoked fish case that features seven types of smoked salmon, as well as whitefish and big bowls of schmear-worthy cream.

The focus reflects Butterfield's own history, according to Evan and Joelle, third-generation owners whose grandfather began working at the Lexington Avenue market in the 1950s.

"We're authentic New York," Evan said.

Cell Service Added To L Train's Canarsie Tunnel: Cuomo

A project to bring cell service to the tunnel was completed this week, making the L the first under-river line to have cell service.

A project to bring cell service to the tunnel was completed this week, making the L the first under-river line to have cell service. (Ciara McCarthy/Patch)

L TRAIN CORRIDOR, NYC — Brooklyn straphangers won't have to look up from their phones the entire ride into Manhattan thanks to new cell service that has been added to the L train's Canarsie Tunnel, Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced Thursday.

A project to bring cellular connectivity to the Brooklyn-Manhattan subway line's trip underwater was finished this week, making the Canarsie Tunnel the first under-river tunnel in the New York City subway system to get cell service, Cuomo said.

The announcement comes about eight months after Cuomo first announced plans to bring cell service to the L train and four months after a massive repair project to the tunnel wrapped up.

Subscribe >

"The L Line project was proof that when we are confronted with a challenge we can build back better and stronger," Cuomo said. "We challenged those who said this project couldn't be done, and as a result, the MTA has delivered a more resilient tunnel with 21st century technology."

The project "piggybacked" off of the year-long L train repairs, which finished in April, meaning crews were able to add the broadband system without shutting down service again, transit officials said.

There does appear to be a catch, though. The system will be run by Transit Wireless, meaning only AT&T customers can use their phones and other devices through the tunnel, according to Cuomo's announcement.

Transit Wireless is the same company that outfitted MTA's underground stations with connectivity.

The MTA is set to receive revenue from the L train cell service connection and the came at no cost to the Authority, Cuomo's office said.

Con Ed, O&R Fined $10.75 Million For 2018 Snowstorm Response

Just days after Westchester officials vowed to re-examine Con Ed's commitments after the 2018 debacle, the NY PSC released its finding.

By Lanning Taliaferro, Patch Staff

Aug 13, 2020 1:52 pm ET

Wild winter storms in 2018 left hundreds of thousands of customers without power in the Hudson Valley. (Lanning Taliaferro/Patch)

The New York State Public Service Commission announced a record $10.75 million settlement with Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc. and Orange and Rockland Utilities Inc. over their poor response to massive power outages during 2018 back-to-back winter storms.

The announcement comes a day after Westchester County Executive George Latimer vowed to review the promises Con Ed made after storms named Riley and Quinn, when 210,000 customers lost service and the company had to basically rebuild its delivery system in Westchester.

"Utilities have a duty to their customers to be prepared for a storm, to restore power as safely and as quickly as possible, and to keep customers accurately informed during any such event," Commission Chair John B. Rhodes said in the PSC's announcement. "The terms of the joint settlement are consistent with the environmental, social, and economic policies of the Commission and the State and in the public interest. Our decision today clearly demonstrates that if a utility fails, in whole or in part, to meet this standard, the company's shareholders will be held accountable."

The storms in 2018 were severe weather events. The first, Winter Storm Riley, occurred on March 2 and 3, resulting in about 143,300 customer outages in Con Edison's service territory and 52,500 customer outages in O&R's service territory. Four days later, on March 7, the companies' territories were struck again by a second severe storm, Winter Storm Quinn, which resulted in 66,000 customer outages for Con Edison and 31,500 customer outages for O&R.

Investigation into the utility companies began almost immediately afterward. On March 14, at the direction of Governor Andrew M. Cuomo, department staff considered whether the companies properly prepared for, and responded to, the effects of the storms in compliance with their annually filed emergency response plans.

As part of the investigation, both companies adopted a combined 144 storm plan recommendations back in 2019.

The $10.75 million settlement agreement, comprised of settlement funds and mitigation measures, is the largest ever of its kind for failure to adequately execute a utility emergency response plan.

Under the terms of the agreement, the companies agree to settle alleged violations of their emergency response plans for a combined $10.75 million in ratepayer benefit ($9.5 million to Con Edison and $1.25 million to O&R, which is a Con Ed subsidiary), with $6.45 million in settlement funds and an additional $4.3 million in mitigation measures taken in coordination with the Department of Public Service at the time of the storms.

The $6.45 million in settlement funds will be used for the companies' electric ratepayer benefit at their next rate cases, allowing for ratepayer input on the funds' use.

David Buchwald  @DavidBuchwald · Aug 13, 2020

Replying to @DavidBuchwald

$6.45 million is levied in fines and $4.3 million goes to mitigation measures, like payouts for food & medicine spoilage. All of this money is at shareholder expense.

David Buchwald

@DavidBuchwald

My initial take - the financial penalty is a record amount (just north of the $10.5 million combined NYSEG/RG&E penalty for the same storms), but I don't think it is enough to ensure that the fines aren't just a cost of doing business.

Thursday's settlement is unrelated to any ongoing investigations of Con Edison and other state utilities resulting from last week's Tropical Storm Isaias response. Cuomo told Con Ed last week that its franchise could be revoked over it.

The decision may be obtained by going to the Commission Documents section of the Commission's Web site at www.dps.ny.gov and entering Case Number 19-E-0107 (Con Edison) and 19-E-0108 (O&R) in the input box labeled "Search for Case/Matter Number".
